ENTERTAINMENTS.

Hypnotism.

"Sowing the Wind" will play a return date to-night. It will be presented by the same excellent cast which gave it here a few weeks ago. The sale of seats is already very large, and a big audience will be present. This play ran for 200 nights at the Empire theater, New York, and at the Columbia theater, Boston, for 100 nights. The late Prof. Blackie said that "Sowing the Wind" was "the greatest sermon ever preached on Hosea viii, 7," and the Rev. F. J. Mackay declared that "if our women would only take to hearts and practice the lesson so magnificently taught by Miss Hampton, and make man realize that the law of purity was as essential to man as to woman, we should soon see a marked improvement in our upper classes."

George Thatcher and Carroll Johnson's minstrel next Saturday evening.
Messrs. Thatcher and Johnson are prime favorites in this city, and no doubt will meet with a hearty reception when they make their appearance upon the stage. Sales of seats opens Friday.

PALMER COX'S BROWNIERS.

The sale of seats for "Palmer Cox's Brownies" begins this morning at the Hypnotism. The great enterprise of Manager Bunnell has secured for New Haven the most notable success of the present New York dramatic season. To bring the gigantic equipment to this city, he was obliged to guarantee C. F.
Jefferson, Elmer & Erlanger, who control "The Brownies," that their share of the week's receipts should exceed $5,000. By the terms of his contract, Manager Bunnell has the option of fixing prices for the engagement of "The Brownies." He has made them one-third lower than they were in New York, so that theatergoers in this and other Connecticut cities can witness at the Hypnotism the great metropolitan production intact for a much less sum than was paid by crowds who filled the Fourteenth Street theater for 105 nights. The immense seating capacity of the Hypnotism makes this low scale of prices possible. The best seats for any night or either of the Wednesday or Saturday matinees is only 15c. The railroads have made low excursion rates from all parts of the state during "Brownie week" at the Hypnotism, for the great spectacle will be presented in no other city in Connecticut.

Grand Opera House.

One of the best attractions on the road this season is M. B. Leavitt's beautiful spectacle, "Spider and Fly," which will be presented Friday and Saturday evenings. Beautiful scenery, brilliant lighting, fine music and unlimited fun give ample opportunity to a large company of clever people to please the most exact audience. Another feature will be a series of living pictures such as have won so much popularity in New York city. The subjects of the various groupings are taken from the famous paintings of Europe and America.
"Spider and Fly" matinee and Saturday evening. "Dixie," the new comedy drama by Scott Marble, and produced by Thomas H. Davis and William T.
Keogh with a lavish use of scenic and mechanical adjuncts, tells an exciting story of a Carolina girl, who has a romantic secret marriage. It will be presented the first three nights next week, with matinees on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Poll's Wonderland Theater.

Hughie Dougherty is still at it at the Wonderland. He keeps peering away every afternoon and evening trying to show the people of New Haven the ab-surdities of municipal reform, law and order, trolley line regulations, electric light combination, trolley and city consolidation, and of other live problems. Miss Wenner in her famous character improvisations, John and Harry Dillon in their catchy parody songs, the Burt sisters in their rich costume changes, and the Rice brothers in their daring work on the triple bars. Billy Williams with his funny tramp pictures, and Mathe-wias in their funny sketches make fun for everybody. Any who can't enjoy this week's bill at the Wonderland weren't cut out to have a good time at a vaudeville performance.

DISCUSSING PEACH GROWING.

Annual Meeting of the Connecticut Pomological Society.
Hartford, March 1.—The fourth annual meeting of the Connecticut Pomological society was held yesterday, in room 50, at the Capitol. There was a large attendance of members of the society, especially those interested in peach growing. The meeting was called to order about 10:30 by President J. B. Smith of New Britain. Secretary G. S. Butler of Cromwell was present.

Mr. R. A. Moore of Kensington, the treasurer of the society, made an interesting address on "Ripening of Peaches." Mr. Moore detailed an experiment in which he had endeavored to find out the best way of ripening peaches. He picked thirty-six peaches from the trees and made them up into six groups, and treating each group differently, and noting the result. One group was placed in a bureau drawer, another was placed in a box and covered with a blanket and covered with cotton, another was placed in a barrel of bran, another was placed between woolen blankets and on a tin roof, and another was placed in a dry earthen jar. The peaches were carefully watched, and the results were as follows: The peaches on the tin roof were scalded and rotten, those placed in the earthen jar were ripened, but damp and inferior. All the others ripened beautifully, and there was absolutely no choice. The speaker recommended storing peaches for ripening in shallow wooden boxes. These may be piled tier upon tier in a dry upper room or loft. The boxes may be easily examined for rotten fruit, and the ripened fruit removed at the proper time.

J. H. Hale of South Glastonbury, the well-known peach grower, spoke of the "San Jose scale," a disease which struck two orchards on the Pacific coast some twenty years ago. At first the eastern growers did not pay much attention to it, as it only made their market better.
But after ravaging the orchards in California for about fifteen years, it began to come east. No cases have as yet been reported in this state, but stringent measures should be taken to prevent it.

Under the head of "The Peach Yellows Law," Mr. J. M. Hubbard of Middletown was introduced as the "Protestor of Peach Yellows." Mr. Hubbard is the chairman of the peach yellows commission, which has the administration of the law in its hands. He said that peach yellows is a contagious disease, and when it gets into an orchard is communicated from tree to tree in some way. The most stringent measures must be employed, and it is almost impossible to eradicate the disease. Success is only the result of untiring vigilance from the very beginning. It has been found that after destroying every tree that appears to be affected in a particular orchard, even then the disease appears all over the orchard at a later date. The speaker's inference from these facts is that there is a period of incubation during which the trees are really affected, but that the disease is not sufficiently developed to appear in the well-known outward symptoms.
More light and more information, only to be obtained from thorough scientific investigation, are greatly needed. The disease is an obscure one, and the growers know but little about it.

The topic was discussed by President Smith and Mr. J. H. Hale. Mr. Hale said the only way to control the peach yellows was to mercilessly destroy every tree upon which the disease shows.
The growers need more education.
They should, by great care in observation, learn what the earliest symptoms of the disease are, and not wait until the whole tree is in the green.
Several speakers followed, and all agreed that this was the earliest of the peach yellows.

At 11:45 it was suggested that, as the house had finished its session for the day, the meeting adjourn to the hall of the house, where all could get seats.
This was accordingly done. When the meeting was recalled to order Mr. Hale announced that he had in view of the proposal to repeal the yellows law he would like to get an expression of opinion in regard to it, and asked all who favored the repeal of the law to stand up. One gentleman stood up and was counted. Mr. Hale asked him how many trees he owned, but did not voter said he owned none. Then those who favored the present law were asked to rise, and fifty or sixty were on their feet in a moment. Mr. Hale then proceeded to call the roll, and asked each grower voting in favor of the law how many trees he owned. The replies ranged all the way from three hundred to three thousand trees.

Professor A. C. Guiley of Storrs school was introduced and made an interesting address on peach yellows. Professor Guiley's remarks were from the standpoint of a practical orchardist as well as that of a scientist. The speaker said that scientists have done a great deal of harm by their investigations, and
only a little good. In the first place there are those who teach that it can be cured. That is a great mistake. I do not believe there is a single case on record where a tree affected by the yellows has ever been actually cured. It cannot be cured. Another difficulty is from those who ridicule the idea that the yellows is a contagious disease, and say it is impossible that a tree can be affected to other trees. Professor Guiley, who has had a large experience with the peach yellows in the state of Michigan, gave a history of fighting the disease in that state. There has been a law in operation for the past eighteen years.
There has never been any talk there of repealing the law, and while, at one time the whole state was ravaged by the yellows, now the loss from yellows is less than two per cent. In Michigan it took some fourteen years of hard work and vigorous enforcement of the law to rid the state of the disease.
